3.1. Monitoring/Studies/Researches

3.1.1 Monitoring Free Expression Violations

Globe International has been monitoring free expression violations since October 2005 under OSI Network Media Program and OSF, Mongolia. In May 2010, Globe International has launched a new two-year project with goal to protect the rights and independence of journalists by monitoring threats and attacks on journalists and media organizations thus contributing to promoting greater media freedom. http://www.globeinter.org.mn/?cmd=Record&id=749&menuid=367

We used to have 22 monitors based in Ulaanbaatar and 21 provinces and in 2010, a new online monitoring system was created in order to allow the journalists to directly approach Globe International for reporting on their cases. www.globeinter.org.mn/selfalerting
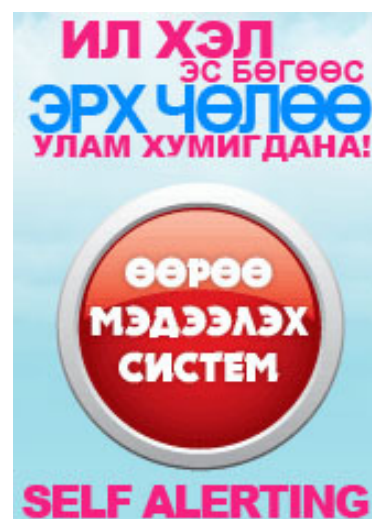

Those journalists who are currently not able to use the on-line system would have the possibility to use other tools to contact our Alert Coordinator. These tools are as follows:

- ✓ Yahoo messenger: alert_mon

- ✓ Local: 324764, 324627

3.1.2 The following two studies carried out within the project Enabling Legal Environment for Free and Independent Media under the Asia Foundation grant:

- Comparative Study on Media Ownership and Concentration.

Study conducted by M. Dorjkhand, a lawyer. Purpose of the study was to look at how media ownership and concentration impacts the media independence and to raise awareness of the public, media community and decision makers on legal regulations for optimal ratio of media ownership and concentration, thus ensuring fair and transparent media environment that is desired for good governance and strengthening of democracy in the country.

Media ownership and its transparency are on the widely discussed issues in the society and media concentration is on-going process in Mongolia. The lawyer reviewed regulations of Australia, France, Germany USA, Netherlands, Italy and Great Britain as well as the present Mongolian legislation. Specifics of regulations introduced by the European Union and Europarliament also were learned as international standard. Report on the comparative study provides terminology and definitions of the media ownership and concentration.

Based on the findings, report includes recommendations to enable legal environment for the media ownership and concentration.

- Comparative study on Editorial Independence

Study conducted by M.Batsuuri, a lawyer and was aimed at increasing awareness and knowledge about the editorial independence among lawyers, media practitioners and human rights NGOs with in immediate objectives to research practices of international regulations and legislation and develop recommendations for improving legal environment.

Study involved national laws and regulations having positive or negative impact on the editorial independence and regulations of Scandinavian countries and Portugal as well Russia, Georgia and Macedonia – in contrary, tried to adopt specific regulations on editorial independence. In most countries "Code of professional conduct" for journalists is adopted and it serves as binding rules for all media workers and watchdog organizations are in place for cases of breaches of this Code. Editorial independence is usually reflected in these codes in the form of protection of journalistic professional activities and the journalistic content from the sources of financing.

3.1.3 Ant-corruption legislative score card

In the framework of the Asia Foundation-funded project" Integrity Star", we conducted a monitoring on the votes of MPs on anti-corruption legislation that passed by the Parliament between 2008 and 2010. Prior the monitoring D. Saranchimeg, a lawyer compiled the list of laws related anti-corruption including laws and law provisions supporting government transparency. In total, 20 laws and law on amendments were enacted. The monitoring team worked in the Parliament library and reviewed the memos of seven Parliament sessions held for 154 days and seven activity reports issued by the Parliament.

In 2008-2010, the Parliament passed in total 534 laws and resolutions. The findings showed that no laws and policy documents directly looking into the corruption passed by the Parliament, but 14 laws, five law amendments and 14 Parliamentary Resolutions were enacted to improve the mechanism for the government accountability, and responsiveness and to promote justice. The team selected nine laws and involved to the scorecard.

The main obstacle on the monitoring process was that team was not allowed to access the voting results, even it is not secret information by the Mongolian laws. Then Globe International sent an official letter to Mr. Ts.Sharavdorj, head of Parliament Office Parliament seeking support in information gathering.

Unfortunately, it was not allowed, therefore, on October 27, 2010, we sent the official letters to 76 MPs requesting to access the records of the voting. We received the answers from only three MPs: Kh.Temuujin, Ts.Sedvanchig and Ts.Munkh-Orgil permitting to access to their voting records. Finally, we succeeded in getting the voting records after Globe International leader met Mr. D.Demberel, Speaker of Parliament on December 1, 2010.

The Monitoring report sent to the Asian Foundation for review and it will be publicized next year through a press conference.

3.1.4 Globe International works on two surveys as a part of our project "Transparency Campaigning at Local Government to Curb Corruption funded by the Partnership for Transparency Fund

http://www.globeinter.org.mn/?cmd=Record&id=859&menuid=351

- Impact survey on radio programs

The research team lead by T.Batzorig completed the impact survey in March 2010 on twenty-minute radio series aired by the National Public Radio "Herder of Modern Era" from January 2009 to 30 June 2010 and a series "Way of Success" aired by 8 local radio stations during the project implementation. The survey was conducted in four aimags: Khentii, Umnugovi, Uvurkhangai and Khuvsgul and involved 100 herders and 700 SMEs and unemployed residing in the target aimags.

The results showed that 46% of the rural residents listen to "Herder of Modern Era" and 12.3%- "Way of success". Each of five listeners of "Herder of Modern Era" received information and news important to support their businesses while only 1% of "Way of Success" listeners said the same. It concludes that the percentage of the radio listeners is low, especially local radio reach is not sufficient. While television is the main information source for 68.9% of herders' families. . BIA should to take into consideration that 46% of the herders have considered that TV version of "Herder of Modern Era" would be more effective.
